THIRD NATIONAL HOSPITAL INFECTION PREVENTION AND CONTROL CERTIFICATE COURSE

Infection control has become a pillar of modern health services all over the world. This is due to increased recognition of fact that hospital acquired infections have a limiting point in successful outcomes of medical treatments and interventions. They negatively impact hospital outcomes and defeat the basic purpose of health funding, and turning it cost ineffective. Infection prevention and control is the collective responsibility of all medical, paramedical and administrative professionals. This can only be achieved by a systematic scientific approach attained by getting trained and updated in this area periodically.

Regulatory organizations such as NABH and JCI take serious note of this aspect while accrediting institutions. Yet, there is a significant paucity of training courses for infection control for health care workers, paramedics and administrators in our country.

Our infection control team at CARE Hospitals, Nampally has been running a well coordinated and highly acclaimed programme for the last few years, which has been appreciated by NABH. We deemed it appropriate to share our experience and expertise with colleagues from other institutions and impart some fundamental training so that they can implement the same in their respective institutions.

Towards achieving this goal we have designed a three-day THIRD NATIONAL HOSPITAL INFECTION PREVENTION AND CONTROL CERTIFICATE COURSE at CARE Hospitals, Nampally, in collaboration with the Indian Medical Association of Hyderabad, from 1st to 3rd October 2015. Delegates attending the course will receive an individual certificate of attendance mentioning the 06 credit hours granted by the Andhra Pradesh Medical Council to this course. The International Society for Disease Surveillance (ISDS) and the Indian Institute of Public Health (IIPH) have collaborated with us in this important event. We invite all interested professionals such as doctors, PG students in medical and surgical specialties, hospital administrators, senior nurses, and quality coordinators across the country to join hands towards reducing infection in their institutions and the healthcare field.
